No Shame

The area's newest nightlife event is thriving.
In just three months, No Shame Theatre has premiered over 150 new works, displayed dozens of pieces of visual art and spawned an improv group, a burlesque group and a comedy music quartet that has released its first CD.

More icing was recently put on the cake in the form of a sizable grant for the upstart program. No Shame Theater has won a $35,000 grant for the Springer Opera House from the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation.

"No Shame has been a huge success and attracted hundreds of dedicated fans, but foundation support like this is another affirmation of the positive impact we're seeing every Friday night at No Shame performances," said No Shame Theater director Jens Rasmussen.

The Knight Foundation funds projects that transform communities based on the foundation's values of discovery, vision, courage.

The Fountain City Kitties are just one of the many performances you can see at the No Shame Theatre, which has premiered over 150 new works, displayed dozens of pieces of visual art and spawned an improv group, a burlesque group and a comedy music quartet that has released its first CD.

All Saints’ is a progressive Christian congregation in the heart of midtown Atlanta. We profess that the way of abundant life is found in choosing to follow Jesus Christ with all that we are and all that we have. We use the resources of this community in pursuit of our spiritual growth. To that end, we give generously of ourselves and our wealth and invite others to share in what we enjoy.

Explore the mysterious interior of the Fabulous Fox Theatre. This is the theatre whose dramatic rescue from demolition changed Atlanta’s attitudes toward preservation. One of the few remaining exotic movie palaces of the 1920s, its Middle Eastern and Egyptian designs create a spectacle of grandeur. This site is a perfect example of a Living Landmark preserving its past and being an active and important player in the performing arts scene of Atlanta. It hosts local, national and international acts, helps other theaters with preservation and does important outreach work to ensure the next generation of patrons.
